UGC Accessibility Guidelines for HEI

In the year 2022, the UGC introduced comprehensive Accessibility Guidelines and Standards to promote inclusive and accessible higher education for students with disabilities. These guidelines require institutions to establish frameworks that ensure barrier-free participation from admission through to course completion. The focus is on equal access to academic content, library services, and the implementation of Universal Design for Learning (UDL).

Highlights of the UGC Accessibility Guidelines and Standards:

- Inclusive Learning Environment: The guidelines are designed to foster a supportive and inclusive atmosphere for students with disabilities throughout their academic journey—from enrollment to evaluation.
- Curriculum Accessibility: Emphasis is placed on making the curriculum accessible through adaptable teaching practices and the integration of UDL principles to support diverse learning needs.
- Library Accessibility: Institutions are expected to offer library materials in accessible formats, ensuring that all students have equal opportunities to engage with academic resources.
- Accessibility Audit: A specialized audit tool is being developed to evaluate how effectively institutions are applying these accessibility standards.
- Support for Institutions: UGC actively supports HEIs in the implementation of these standards, helping to ensure full academic inclusion for students with disabilities.
