PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Dear All!!

It gives me immense pride and privilege to present yet another edition of the College Magazine for the academic year 2025–26. This publication is not merely a compilation of events and activities conducted throughout the year, but a vibrant reflection of the creativity, intellectual strength, and innovative spirit that define

I extend my heartfelt appreciation and gratitude to the staff editors, student editors, and all contributors whose dedication and sincere efforts have made this magazine a reality. Their commitment truly showcases the dynamic academic and co-curricular environment of our institution.

This year marks a significant milestone in our journey towards excellence. We are proud to announce that five of our students have qualified the Graduate Pharmacy Aptitude Test (GPAT), while six students have successfully qualified NIPER with commendable All India Ranks of 149, 200, 1326, 2176, and 3158. These accomplishments reflect the academic rigor and determination of our students.

I am also pleased to share that, under the guidance of our dedicated faculty members, students have published more than 30 research and review articles during this academic year. Our faculty members have further contributed to academic advancement through 01 patent publication, authorship of more than four books, and one book chapter, thereby strengthening the research culture within the institute.

In Avishkar 2025, our students secured 2nd and 3rd ranks, bringing great pride to the institute under the valuable mentorship of faculty members. More than 08 students actively participated in this prestigious competition, reflecting their enthusiasm for research and innovation. At the University Level Avishkar, our student achieved the prestigious Gold Medal and represented the institute at the State Level Research Convention—an achievement of great distinction.

Design And Synthesis Of Chalcone Derivatives As Antidiabetic And Anticancer Agents

Author: Dr.Ashok Narute

Abstract: Chalcones are versatile flavonoid precursors with significant medicinal potential, particularly for antidiabetic and anticancer applications. In this study, novel chalcone derivatives were designed and synthesized using the Claisen–Schmidt condensation method and characterized through standard analytical techniques. Biological evaluation showed that several compounds effectively inhibited α -amylase and α -glucosidase enzymes, indicating antidiabetic potential, while also exhibiting strong anticancer activity against selected cell lines. Structure–activity relationship analysis revealed that different substituents influenced their effectiveness. Overall, the study suggests that chalcone derivatives are promising multifunctional therapeutic agents, warranting further research for clinical development.

Comprehensive Review on Astaxanthin – Sources, Chemistry, Pharmacological Activities, Formulation Strategies, and Therapeutic Applications with marketed Formulations:

Author: Dr. Vandana Patil , Reshma Patil , Dr. Sachindanand Angadi, Mr.Rohan Dhepe.

Abstract: Carotenoids, especially astaxanthin, are widely studied due to their strong health benefits and pharmacological activities. Astaxanthin is a powerful antioxidant with multiple therapeutic effects, including anti-inflammatory, cardioprotective, neuroprotective, and anticancer properties. However, its poor solubility and low bioavailability limit its use. Advanced formulations like nanoemulsions and nanoparticles help improve its effectiveness. This review summarizes its sources, properties, health benefits, recent research, and highlights future opportunities for developing astaxanthin-based nutraceuticals and medicines.

" बेवजह ही लगने वाला डर "

कभी-कभी ना हमें बेवजह ही डर लगता है उसकी वजह पता नहीं होती पर डर लगता है; शायद वो डर जरूरी भी होता है।

अगर डर नहीं लगता तो हम कुछ भी नहीं करते, सही रास्ते पर चलने के लिए, या फिर रास्तों से ना भड़कने के लिए।

मैंने उसे डर पर लिखा था।

कभी-कभी ना बेवजह ही डर लगता है। न जाने क्या वजह होती होगी डर की, शायद बीते हुए कल का होता होगा, या फिर आने वाले कल का, पर वह डर जरूर होता है।

बीती बातों का होता है, या फिर आने वाली बातों का, पर डर जरूर होता है।

शायद वह डर अपनों को खोने का होता होगा, या फिर कोई डेडलाइन मिस करने का होता होगा, या फिर अपना सब कुछ देने पर भी कुछ हासिल न होने का होता होगा पर डर जरूर होता है। कुछ बोल देने पर सामने वाले को कैसा लगेगा या फिर कुछ ना बोलने पर क्या होगा, इस बात का होता होगा।

शायद कुछ न करने का, कुछ करके भी कामयाबी न मिलने का, कुछ छूटने का, कोई बिछड़ने का, या फिर वक्त को यूँ ही गवा देने का होता होगा, पर डर जरूर होता है।

हर दिन कुछ ना सीखने का, या फिर नया सिखके पुराना भूल जाने का होता होगा, पर डर जरूर होता है।

 Competition Theme - Relevance of Ambedkar's Ideology in Today's Society

Dr. Bhimrao Ramji Ambedkar remains one of the most influential thinkers, activists, and social reformers in modern India.

His ideology, rooted in the principle of liberty, equality, fraternity and social justice, continues to hold immense relevance in contemporary society. Although India has made significant progress in the fields of democracy, education and economic development, many of the structural inequalities that Ambedkar fought against still persist. Therefore, his ideas are not only historical but also critically relevant in addressing present-day social, political and economic challenges.

At the core of Ambedkar's ideology is the annihilation of caste and the establishment of a society based on equality. It is considered that caste to be the greatest obstacle to social unity and human dignity.

Even in today's society, caste-based discrimination, social exclusion, and violence continue to affect marginalized communities. Incidents of untouchability, inequitable access to education, professional institutions demonstrate that Ambedkar's critique of caste remains deeply relevant.

In today's knowledge-driven society, education remains central to reducing inequality and promoting upward social mobility. For marginalized communities, women and weaker sections, access to quality education continues to be a crucial issue.

Ambedkar's ideology, therefore, remains relevant in shaping policies related to inclusive education, scholarship and equal opportunities.

Furthermore, Ambedkar's ideology is highly relevant in discourse on gender equality and women's rights. He was one of the earliest leaders to advocate for legal reforms that would empower women socially and economically. His support for the Hindu Code Bill reflected his progressive vision for women's property rights, marriage laws and dignity.

In today's society, where gender discrimination, wage inequality and violence against women continue to be pressing concerns, Ambedkar's ideas offer a strong intellectual foundation for feminist and human rights movements.

His warning that political democracy can survive without social democracy continues to guide modern India.

His vision of casteless, classless, and religiously neutral society continues to inspire social justice movements and constitutional reforms. Such as reservation policies.

Another major dimension of Ambedkar's thought is his emphasis on constitutional democracy and the role of the Indian constitution. As the chief architect of the Indian constitution, Ambedkar must be accompanied by social and economic democracy.

In the contemporary context, where issues such as threats to civil liberties, majoritarian politics, and social polarization are increasingly debated, Ambedkar's concept of constitutionalism possibly becomes highly significant. He emphasized that democracy is not merely a system of government but a mode of associated living based on mutual respect and justice. His ideas serve as a guiding framework for protecting democratic institutions and citizens' rights in the modern state.

Ambedkar also strongly advocated education as a means of empowerment. His famous slogan, 'Be Educated, Be Aghate, Be Organized', reflects his belief that education is the most powerful tool for social transformation.

A famous quote by Ambedkar states: "Political democracy cannot last unless there lies at the base of it social democracy."

This statement highlights the continuing need to build an inclusive society based on justice and equality.

Another important dimension of his ideology is his fight against discrimination. It applies to all forms of injustice, whether it is discrimination based on race, gender, religion or class. His teaching inspires movements for human rights across the world. His vision is very clear about society.

Dr. Ambedkar's whole life is the continuous unending and courageous struggle he had to make against social injustice, in human unequal treatment. Dr. Ambedkar's was very existence of a spoken reason of Hindu community, i.e. the workers, small peasants, landless labourers and women.
